Director, Professional Recruiting
Veritas Partners

Biography

Bryan Watts is Director of Professional Recruiting with Veritas Partners.

He has over eight years' experience in the recruiting field. Watts joined The Mergis Group in 2009 within the financial services sector in a business development and recruiting capacity. The timing of his hire was during the massive economic recession and financial crisis. He was able to not only withstand the typical growing pains within the recruiting field, but also flourished in the midst of the financial crisis, recruiting within that specific field only – and built early success right away. He quickly elevated into a Senior Executive Recruiter role within three years, working a full desk – balancing business development, relationship building and candidate sourcing. In 2011, Randstad purchased The Mergis Group. Watts continued a path of consistent success, consecutively billing more each year. He maintained an upper tier ranking among all internal recruiters nationwide and held a top 25 ranking until his last day at Randstad.

He earned his bachelor's degree from Towson University as a Finance Major. Watts was also team captain for the Towson Men's soccer club, and was an active volunteer with various organizations within the local Baltimore community.
